THE DAILY PRINCETONIAN, the official daily of the University, was established June 4, 1876, by the Class of 1877. For a period of nine years the paper was published regularly once a week, then appeared a tri-weekly for a short time, and was finally made a daily by the 1893 Board of Editors. From that year on its efficiency increased steadily until, in 1910, the 1911 Board enlarged the paper, secured a membership in the Associated Press—making it the first college publication in this country to secure the daily news sent out by that organization—and incorporated THE DAILY PRINCETONIAN PUBLISHING COMPANY, December 3, 1910.
